Narrative:

On 2024/05/19 , China's Ministry of Commerce launched an anti-dumping probe into POM copolymers from the European Union, United States, Japan and Taiwan.¹

China's move follows President Biden's decision to increase tariffs on Chinese electric vehicles and solar cells, along with the European Union's series of probes and tariffs on Chinese goods.²

On 2025/01/16, China announced that it found the EU, the US, Japan and Taiwan all guilty of dumping plastics into the Chinese economy, and that it would impose countervailing tariffs on the plastics ranging from 3.8 percent to 74.9 percent.³ The sanctions were officially imposed on 2025/05/18.⁴

These sanctions remain in place.
